SAFETY WINNER—Charles E. Kerchner, head of the Power Plant, White Oak, accepts the third quarter accident prevention contest plaque from Vice President Clarence N. Cone. The Power Plant won for small plants and units with no lost time accidents during the third quarter this year.

Well Baby Clinic Upholds Ounce Of Prevention Adage

(This is the third in a series of articles by members of the staff of the Guilford County Health Department. Today's article is by Ed Burkett, health educator.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, so the old adage goes, and how true it is, especially in matters pertaining to health.

Almost any disease or sickness affecting the human body can be warded off, guarded against, and cured earlier and easier if the old rule of an ounce of prevention is applied at the proper time.

The mothers who bring their children to the Well Baby Clinic at the Proximity YMCA are doing just that. They are being sure that the "ounce of prevention" is being given to their children to help protect them against many diseases and sickness which might otherwise await them in the future. But protected by immunizations and the advice given to mothers by the nurses on certain problems, the probability is much greater than a healthy future is in store for the child.

The Proximity Well Baby Club is under the supervision of two well trained, experienced Public Health Nurses. They are able to help with many of the problems facing parents in the difficult task of rearing a healthy family.

Some of the services which are available through the club are immmunizations against Whooping Cough, Diptheria and Tetanus. These shots should be given at two or three months of age. It is sometimes called "triple" vaccine and is given in a series of three

Employees' Son Is "Airman Of Month"

Airman First Class Ellwood E. Hicks of the Operations Section, Oceola Air Force Station, Wis., on November 1 received the award of "Airman of the month" an honor bestowed upon the most outstanding airman on the base. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hicks, both employees in the Eno Plant Weaving Department.

Major John C. Houtz, commander of the base presented the award to Airman Hicks during a formal

Bulletin

The condition of Cone Mills Corporation President Herman Cone was reported more encouraging yesterday at the time this paper went to press.

Mr. Cone suffered a heart attack while visiting his mother, Mrs. Ceasar Cone, at her home on Summit Avenue, last Saturday night. He is at Moses H. Cone Memorial Hospital.

The company president had his first heart attack a few years ago but continued as the active head of the business, carrying his usual heavy responsibilities.

Ladies Bowling League Continues

Benlee's, with Ila Roberts leading the way, maintained that substantial lead they hold in the Cone Ladies League, by winning two from Edmond's Drug Friday night. Ila bowled high set, 282, and high game, 105.

Doodie Wood, of Edmond's was high for her team, with a 267 set, and 95 game.

Summit Center Esso took two from Kool Springs Trailer Park, with Jeanette Southern's 284 set high for Summit Esso. For Kool Springs, Lorraine Amos bowled both high set and high game, 278 and 102.

Team standings have reached an interesting point, with three teams out of four tied for second place, with 15 wins—18 losses.

Benlee's, on top by a comfortable margin, leads the league with 22 wins—11 losses.

Cone Memorial YMCA Busy For Christmas

Facilities of the Cone Memorial YMCA are being taxed to full capacity with the many social events revolving around the Christmas holidays, and honors to brides-elect in showers and wedding receptions.

The White Oak Matrons' Club will have their Christmas meeting December 7; White Oak Y's Men's Club will observe Ladies' Night and their annual Christmas Dinner at 6:00 p.m., December 8. On December 9, the Church of God will have a steak supper by Mrs. Eloise Owens; a bridal shower will be given by Dawn Hester in the National Room of the YMCA; Pauline Woosley Bible Class will use the Lounge for a Christmas party, Mrs. C. F. Noah in charge; Mrs. Helen A. Wyrick will give a bridal shower in the Ladies' Social Room.

Covered Dish Luncheon

Revolution Community Club will meet next Wednesday morning at 10 a.m. in the club room. All women of the community are invited to the meeting and to a covered dish luncheon to follow. Mrs. Hannibal Moore is president.

Proximity Y's Men's Club To Honor Past Leaders

Proximity Y's Men's Club will observe its ninth year of civic activity in the Cone Mills area next Tuesday evening, December 6 at 6 p.m. at Proximity YMCA. All past presidents of the club will be guests of honor. Howard Garner will preside.

The past presidents are Raymond Kincaid, Fred Newnam, Archie Baynes, Pete Costner, George Nance, Curtis May, Fred Ziprik and Wade Jenkins.

The Proximity Y's Men's Club was chartered as a service club of the YMCA on December 6, 1946 by Woodrow Hartsell of Kannapolis, who was at that time international director of Y's Men's Clubs. There are 450 Y's Men's Clubs in 29 countries.

The first officers of the local club were Mr. Kincaid, president; Wade Jenkins, first vice president; Fred Newnam, secretary-treasurer. Twenty-three members were in the organization when it was chartered. There are now 25 active members and four inactive ones.

While the essential character of the Y's Men's Club follows the lines of Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis and other well-known established clubs, a significant difference is noted in the interpretation of its name: "Men of and for the Y." It is a service club for active personal effort in carrying forward every phase of the program of the Young Men's Christian Association.

The phrase "Men of the Y" places a responsibility of each member of the Y's Men's Club for volunteer service of such a nature as will help fulfill the purpose of the Y's Men's Club and of the local YMCA.

Proximity Y's Men's Club meets these objectives by sponsoring such projects as golf tournaments, basketball, baseball, lawn parties, Halloween carnivals for children, Little League Baseball teams, Citizenship Awards to the most outstanding boy and girl in the community and many other civic projects.

T. C. Benton Now With Laboratory Building

Theodore (Ted) C. Benton is now in maintenance and janitorial work at the Laboratory Building.

Ted, who lives at 110 McGee Street, is a Dudley High School graduate and former clerk typist in the Air Force in which he held the rank of corporal. He served in Texas, Wyoming and Florida.

Before coming to Cone Mills, he was with Hennis Freight Lines.

He is married and has three sons and one daughter.

Young Matrons Meet Wednesday

The Young Matrons Club of the Cone Mills area will meet Wednesday, December 7 at Proximity YMCA at 11 a.m. Each member is asked to bring a covered dish for lunch.

The club will make Christmas corsages.

Card Of Appreciation

The family of Mrs. Z. C. Newnam 2000 Poplar Street, acknowledge with grateful appreciation the kindness and sympathy shown them during her illness and death.

Prox.-P. W. Clubs App'ts. Committees

Proximity-Print Works Community Club held a monthly meeting Tuesday, Nov. 22, in the National Room of the Proximity YMCA with Mrs. Richard Sullivan presiding. Mrs. Ira McQueen, for the devotional, stressed the point of telling "people other than our loved ones, how thankful we are for them."

During the business session, Mrs. Sullivan presented the following committees for the year 1955-56: investigating committee, Miss Phoebe Richards, chairman, Mesdames Johnie Myers and Melvin Fields; Ways and Means committee, Mrs. Ira McQueen chairman, Mesdames John Scott, Garland Seabolt and H. M. Angel; social committee, Mrs. Everette Bryant, chairman, Mesdames Eva Whiteley, W. L. Hunter and E. B. Hutson, calling committee, Mesdames Sallie Sims, H. B. Ritter, Lewis Brady and F. G. Curtis. Publicity, Mrs. Frances Funderburk.

Final plans were made for the Annual Christmas dinner to be held Tuesday, December 13, at 6:30 p.m. in the Ladies Social Room of the Proximity YMCA. Reservations must be made by Saturday night, December 10, by calling Mrs. Sullivan 2-0565, or the "Y", 9621.

Hostesses for the evening were the new incoming officers, president, Mrs. Richard Sullivan; vice president, Mrs. Melvin Fields; secretary, Mrs. Ira McQueen; treasurer, Mrs. H. M. Angel. Seventeen members were present.

Funeral Held For Mrs. Samuel G. Alvis

Funeral was held last Wednesday for Mrs. Samuel G. Alvis, of 3619 Church Street. Service was held in Stevens Memorial Baptist Church with Rev. Daniel Lowe, pastor, and Rev. Bennie Lamb, pastor of Hillcrest Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was in Lakeview Memorial Park. Mrs. Alvis died last Monday about 3:30 p.m.

The former Nellie Jane Hicks, Mrs. Alvis was a native of Stokes Country. She had lived here for 54 years and was a member of Stevens Memorial Church. Her husband formerly worked for Cone Mills.

Mrs. Alvis is survived by her husband, three sons, Weldon, S. G. Jr. and Howard Alvis of Greensboro; three daughters, Mrs. C. C. Cross of Huntington, W. Va., Mrs. Roy Thornberry of Wake Forest, and Mrs. Palmer Hilliard of Greensboro; two brothers, Abe Hicks of the Lee's Chapel community and William D. Hicks of Jackson Springs; one sister, Mrs. Dalton Byers of Greensboro; and five grandchildren.

May 20, 1506—Christopher Columbus died in poverty in Spain, believing himself a failure.

Cone Mills Retires 18 In Nine Plants

Eighteen employees of Cone Mills Corporation were retired yesterday, December 1. Four were at White Oak Plant; one was at Revolution Flannel Plant; five were at Minneola in Gibsonville; one at Salisbury Plant; two at Eno in Hillsboro; one at Cliffside; one at American Spinning in Greenville, S. C.; two at Dwight, Alabama City, Ala., and one in the Main Office.

The four at White Oak were Henry Whitfield, watchman for Richland Dam; Banner L. Maness, assistant overseer of the Power Plant; Glenn G. Merritt, plant office; Charlie R. Morphis, assistant overseer of Beaming.

Eugene W. Dodson, assistant overseer of Carding at Revolution, also retired yesterday.

The Minneola retirements were John B. McKenzie, second hand in Weaving; Allie J. Hill, second hand in Weaving; Jacob D. Patton, overseer of the Dye House; Richard H. Wynn, plant office; Charlie R. Younger, second hand in Carding and Spinning.

Frank W. Bridges, overseer of Carding, at Salisbury Plant, also retired yesterday.

Retirements at Eno Plant were Ben F. Allison, assistant overseer of Spinning and Horace K. Greeson, master mechanic.

Victor V. Fortune, retired from his job at Cliffside.

William C. Johnson, American Spinning Plant superintendent, also retired.

The two at Dwight were John K. Thompson and George W. Chunn.

Eugene A. Hood, head of the Waste Department, Main Office, also retired.

Office Party Plans Being Completed

Reservations and money for the Cone Mills office employees' Christmas Dinner Party to be held at Greensboro Country Club, Monday, December 19 at 7 p.m.; should be turned over to Byron Calhoun of the Main Office by tomorrow, December 3. Each person attending will pay $2.00. Dress will be informal.

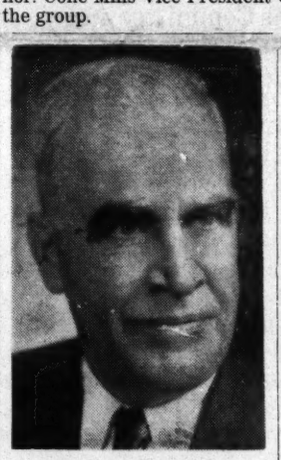
The program committee for the event met last Friday afternoon with the chairman, Jim Perrin, to iron out a few details and go over the general plans for entertainment.

A big variety of entertainment has been arranged, from humorous skit concerning office procedures to special music by local and outside talent to group singing. Following the dinner and the program there will be dancing and bingo.

The Christmas Party Committee includes, in addition to Mr. Perrin, chairman; and Mr. Calhoun, Raymond Smith, George Nance, Dick Eichhorn, Will Marshburn, Jack Phillips, Mrs. Jackie Haislip, Mrs. Vivian Edwards, Mrs. Marie Blackwood, Mrs. Lillian Ward, Miss Carolyn Smith, Miss Martha McKenzie, Miss Lelah Nell Masters.

Cone Mills To Be Host To Safety Meeting Featuring Governor

Approximately 800 industrial managers and employees are expected to hear Governor Luther Hodges when he speaks to the fourth quarterly meeting of the Central Piedmont Safety Council on Wednesday, December 7 at Proximity School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Cone Mills Corporation will be host for the meeting. Former Mayor Benjamin Cone will present the Governor. Cone Mills Vice President Clarence N. Cone will welcome the group.



Governor Hodges

Central Piedmont Safety Council, sponsored by the North Carolina Industrial Commission, is composed of industries throughout nine counties of the northern piedmont district of the state. Its activities are financed by dues paid by industry members. Dues are voluntary, and employees of all industries are invited to attend meetings and to participate.

J. W. Bean is chairman of the North Carolina Industrial Commission. H. S. Baucom is director of safety for the commission. C. Wallace Bourne, Jr., of Cone Mills, is chairman of the Central Piedmont Council, and M. T. Rice, of Western Electric's Winston-Salem plants is vice-chairman.

Much interest has been shown in the governor's accident prevention program both on the highways and in industrial plants. His close association with industry, and particularly the textile industry, as former head of Fieldcrest Mills, enables him to contribute greatly to discussions on industrial safety.

Following the Wednesday night program, Cone Memorial YMCA will be host to the entire group at a refreshment period in the school gym.

Singing Convention To Be Sunday

Guilford County Gospel Singing Convention will be held at Rankin High School, Sunday, December 4, beginning at 2:00 p.m.

The following singers are scheduled to take part; Rythm Aires, Thomasville; Silverton Trio, High Point, North Davidson Quartet, Winston Salem; Golden Melody Girls, Lexington, Little Light Quartet, McLeansville; The Calvary Trio, Faithful Four, and the Cordovians, all of Greensboro. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The ancient Greeks, according to a third century writer, made sixty-two varieties of breads. They often combined the flour of dried lotus root with wheat, barley, rye, millet or rice.

WHITE OAK SUGGESTION—John Harris, Carding Department, White Oak Plant, received an award from Cone Mills for suggesting a portable box to hold the back of the card as it is being moved from the machine. Employees are invited to make suggestions and will be given a cash award in keeping with the idea's value to operations.

Perilous And Shortsighted

Foreign policy is entirely too delicate and important to be used as a political football. With world peace and the preservation of civilization at stake in this treacherous atomic era, getting a candidate elected or keeping or putting a political party in power should be considered as secondary.

It was indeed good news when the press informed the citizens of this nation that President Eisenhower had joined Democratic Senator George of Georgia in urging the nation to halt its 1956 campaign battling at the "water's edge." In brief, this spelled out a very wise plea to keep foreign policy out of politics. When such a plea comes from such stalwart statesmen representing the two major political parties, even the "eager beaver" partisan politicians should stop their "give 'em hell" programs long enough to look and listen. Senator George, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a Democrat stated, "We must assure the world that we are capable of having a non-partisan American foreign policy and that regardless of who wins or loses in 1956 our foreign policy will go on substantially as is."

The White House reports that the President, a Republican, has read and approved the statement of Senator George.

No one is apt to claim that there are no flaws or weaknesses in our present foreign policy or that it will not prove expedient and necessary to modify our position from time to time, but it is extremely important that we be united and stay united in adopting proper policies to protect the best interests of this nation and to safeguard the security of the Free World.

To gamble away the chances for such unity in order to promote personal or party ambitions would appear to be extremely perilous and shortsighted.

"CAPITAL IN USE BY MANUFACTURING CORPORATIONS"—It takes a lot of capital to keep America's manufacturing corporations going and growing. In 1954 it took $175 billion worth. This was the investment necessary for manufacturers to produce goods and keep people employed. Of this total investment, $66.4 billion was tied up in land, buildings, tools machines. Inventories accounted for $43.3 billion. Receivables—the amount owed by customers on the orders they have received but not yet paid for—came to $23.8 billion. Cash on hand, or invested in U. S. Government bonds, amounted to $28 billion. Ready cash is necessary to meet expenses of various kinds—including payroll and taxes—as they fall due.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

... by Dr. George S. Benson
DIRECTOR - NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
Searcy, Arkansas

There is a story in the Modern McGuffey Sixth Grade Reader which carries an ageless moral lesson.

It is the story of Jack, a bright lad who is in love with the miller's daughter. He sets out to win his fortune in seven days. "What I want," he exclaims to his mother on departing, "is something for nothing." His first encounter is with a stalled donkey and its owner. He whispers in the donkey's ear and it responds. The owner rewards Jack with three nuts, and the lad is sure the nuts will magically obtain something for nothing. The nuts prove to be worthless.

Jack next comes upon an old woman with an apple cart, eating her lunch. He sits down and helps himself to an apple. The good-natured peddler doesn't mind. But in payment for the apple, she tells Jack, "You must tighten my horse's harness." Jack laughs. "But it's something for nothing I'm searching for, old mother," he tells her. "And now your apple is gone!" "I'll give you something for nothing!" cries the angry old woman. She boxes him soundly on the ears!

His next encounter is with an old man with merry eyes who is playing a fiddle. Jack tells the fiddler about the beauteous miller's daughter. "And she won't marry you now?" ask the old man. "A fine, bright lad like you?"

"She will marry me when I roll up my sleeves and get to work," says Jack. "But that I'll leave to others, for I've no mind to work my days away . . . Not when a bright lad can always get something for nothing." The old fiddler says to Jack' "I think I'm exactly what you're looking for."

"Folks say I have finger magic with my needle," says the old man, "for I'm a tailor. I stitch forenoon and afternoon, and then at noon and at night I fiddle." "You work?" cries Jack. "And play," says the fiddler. And he sings the following tune:

"There's always been magic, in three and in seven; But I know a secret—there's magic in fingers that know how and when." And the old man looks at Jack and says, "Your fortune's at your finger tips, so make it! You eat your cake after you bake it.

Jack turns back toward home. And finally the old fiddler's message breaks through to his mind. "The beauteous miller's daughter meets him at the mill. "Does your father's mill need a bright young lad, I wonder?" asks Jack. "If it's you!" answers the girl. "Here's my fortune, then," says Jack. "Right here!" And he holds out his hands to her. From now on he will work.

If our school youth can be convinced that the promise of something for nothing is fraudulent, the future of America will be more secure; for this promise is the one great powerful lure which political demagogues are using today to gain power.

Hunting And Fishing In North Carolina

New Deer Hunting Grounds

More of the Western North Carolina lands once hunted over by Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone have recently been made accessible to hunters and will be open for deer shooting from November 21 through December 3. The newest territory is the 14,064-acre wilderness known as the Flat Top Cooperative Wildlife Management Areas. It lies in Mitchell and Yancy Counties, and is linked to Asheville by Highways 19, 19w, and a new refuge road. The area has been extensively stocked with deer from the other refuges in North Carolina and from out of state, and squirrels and ruffed grouse are plentiful. Open season on squirrels will be held on specified days until January 2; an open season on grouse will be held on the four Saturdays (Dec. 10,17,24,31) following the close of the deer season. There will be no hunter quota at Flat Top this year; Refuge Manager Kenneth J. Chiavetta of Asheville says that there will be plenty of room for everyone who wants to hunt.

For Quail Shooting

Two Quail shooting packages—one on the coast and one in the Piedmont—are available to hunters in North Carolina this season. One is at Red River Forest Manor, Belhaven, where a daily fee covers everything except transportation, license and ammunition. One rate includes hunting for ducks, geese, deer, or bear as well as quail; there is another for those who hunt all game except quail. There's a fishing package too. Write Axson Smith, River Forest Manor, Belhaven, North Carolina. The Parks and Wright Regulated Quail Shooting Grounds in North Carolina's Randolph County (near Asheboro) will be open for controlled commercial quail shooting when the season opens November 24. Full details are available from G. M. Holmes, Box 717, Asheboro.

Field Trials

January 27-29 are the dates for the Southeastern Brittany Club's Field Trials at Pinehurst. During the past three years the Pinehurst area has become increasingly popular with Brittany owners and handlers, many of whom first got acquainted with Sandhills county during the Old Dominion Club's Field Trials in 1953, '54 and '55.

Divers' Delight

Cpl. Bob Marx, indefatigable young Marine Corps diving expert who believes he has located the Monitor off Cape Hatteras and more recently has been exploring the wrecks of Confederate Blockade Runners near Wrightsville Beach, thinks the North Carolina coast is a happy hunting ground for divers—whether they use helmets, aqualungs or go skin-diving. Marx has speared sheepshead, drum, small sharks and red snapper from Nags Head to Wrightsville, and says spear fishing is good year around. He ought to know; he has dived in North Carolina coastal waters every month in the year (wearing sweat clothes or grease during the winter months). Marx is founder and President of the Sea Urchins Skin Diving Club, with headquarters at Camp Lejeune where he is stationed, and a membership of 150 Navy men, Marines, Red Cross personnel and their families. They've dived at Cape Lookout, Frying Pan Shoals, New River Inlet and other points along the Tar Heel coast. Marx is a native of California, which has hundreds of diving clubs. The Sea Urchins is the only diving club in North Carolina and one of the few on the East Coast.

Dare Hunting Grounds

West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company is again issuing permits allowing individuals to hunt on lands owned by the Company in Dare County. Permits cost out-of-state residents $5, and are available at Manteo, Manns Harbor, East Lake, Columbia and Stumpy Point. To be eligible for a permit, a hunter must hold a North Carolina hunting license.

Skeet Shooting

Weekly skeet shoots at Pinehurst, North Carolina, opened October 23 and will continue through April. A weekly trophy is awarded on a handicap basis and expert and/or novice shooters will be welcomed. The Mid-Winter Skeet Championship is scheduled for February 4 and 5.

Roan Mt. Tree In Cincinnati Christmas Display

North Carolina is saying "Merry Christmas" to Cincinnati, Ohio, and its multitude of Christmas visitors with a handsome fir tree which will be on display in Cincinnati's Fountain Square Esplanade throughout the month of December.

The North Carolina tree, cut on lofty Roan Mountain, is being sent to Cincinnati by the U. S. Forest Service and the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development. The invitation to participate in the elaborate Fountain Square Christmas display was sent to the Advertising Division of the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development by Dave Roberts, travel and outdoor editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Roberts, an Honorary Tar Heel, has visited North Carolina's mountain and coastal vacationlands many times. District Ranger George Vitas of Burnsville is having the tree cut and shipped, while the State Advertising Division is providing a red and black wooden tag, a replica of the "Smokey Bear" label attached to all trees harvested from The Roan under Forest Service supervision.

Ranger Vitas reports that over 22,000 Christmas trees from The Roan were sold at auction October 19, and will be cut between now and mid-December to give needed growing room to smaller trees. A photographer from the National Geographic Magazine attended the auction, and photographs of the project are expected to appear with a forthcoming Geographic article on U. S. Forest Service projects.

The Christmas trees at Cincinnati will represent 10 states. North Carolina's contribution is a Fraser Fir. More than 1,060 acres of Fraser Fir and Red Spruce crown Roan Mountain's 6,282-foot summit, which is in Pisgah National Forest. Firs are highly prized as Christmas trees because of their high needle-retention and fragrance. They are the Southland's only native grown "balsam firs".

Modern street lighting is a civic improvement communities can measure eight ways, according to the National Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau. Experience of newly relighted communities reported to the Bureau show that safe, modern street lighting invites people downtown at night, protects them against crime and traffic hazards on their visits.

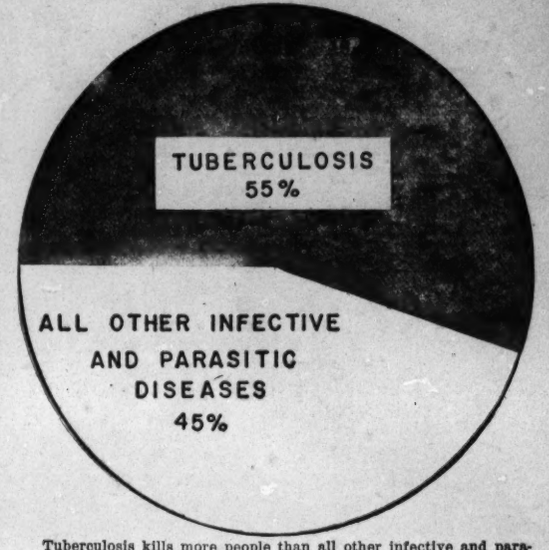
TB—The Killer



Tuberculosis kills more people than all other infective and parasitic diseases combined. Deaths from these diseases are estimated at 31,000 in the United States during 1954. Of these, 17,000 were caused by tuberculosis. The voluntary tuberculosis associations are now conducting their annual Christmas Seal Sale to raise funds for the prevention and control of TB.

Couldn't Prove Payment!

This bewildered young man was sure he had made a cash payment on his garage bill, but he can't find the receipt and so has no proof of it. It would be far wiser for him to pay all his bills with ThriftiChecks and thus keep a record of all payments in his checkbook, have cancelled checks to prove them. A ThriftiCheck personal checking account can be opened with any amount. No minimum balance is required, and the cost is only a few cents a check. Every ThriftiCheck customer has his name smartly printed on his checks at no extra cost. You will never find yourself in this young man's embarassing position if you have a ThriftiCheck Account, so why not stop in soon and talk to us about opening one?

NOW ONLY

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER

SCIENCE

In the world today there are about seventy-five million telephones. A man can talk to another at the other end of a continent, but only eighty years ago a man in a gas-lit garret was experimenting with a steel spring that made possible the sending of a voice through wire. The man was only twenty-seven years old, was attempting to devise a method of sending more than one Morse message over a single telegraph wire at one time, and by chance and the insight of genius invented the telephone. In 1892, only seven years after the invention of the telephone, Alexander Bell talked from New York at one end of a circuit to Chicago. In 1922, when he died, there were almost fifteen million telephones in operation in the United States.

ENGLISH

Rules for the use of the comma:

1—Use a comma to separate clauses of a compound sentence when they are joined by a coordinating conjunction.

2—Use commas to separate words, phrases, and clauses in series.

3—Use a comma or commas to set off from the rest of a sentence a word used in nominative of address.

4—Use commas to set off words, phrases, and clauses used parenthetically.

5—Use a comma after the salutation of an informal letter, and always after the complimentary close of a letter.

6—Use a comma after independent elements which stand first in a sentence such as oh, why, yes, no.

7—Use a comma or commas to separate appositive words, phrases, and clauses from the rest of the sentence.

8—Use commas to separate addresses or dates from the rest of the sentence.

9—Use a comma after a phrase or clause which introduces a sentence.

10—A comma is used to indicate the omission of an important word that has been used earlier in the sentence and is understood.

11—A comma or some other mark of punctuation, such as a question mark or exclamation mark if the sense of the sentence demands either, is used to separate a direct quotation from the rest of the 12—Commas are used to set off contrasting expressions introduced by but, not, or though not.

13—Commas are used to set off nonrestrictive phrases or clauses. (A nonrestrictive phrase or clause is one that may be omitted from a sentence without essentially changing the meaning of the rest of the sentence.)

14—Commas are used to set off a title following a proper name.

A Short Cut Home

To narrow the distance between members of the Armed Forces and their homes, the American Red Cross has established a worldwide communications system vital to the Red Cross family counseling and financial assistance program for servicemen. Here the Red Cross field director at a Naval base helps a seaman get an answer to a personal problem by speeding a wire to the boy's home town Red Cross chapter.

Health For All

Going to the Doctor

Just a few weeks ago we were talking about the importance to people over 50 of having physical exams and chest X-rays at least once a year. One of our readers protested, "That's for hypochondriacs. Going to the doctor so often just makes you think too much about little aches and pains."

Quite the contrary. It will probably have the opposite effect. In the first place, a visit to the doctor once or twice a year isn't "so often." In the course of the year, little aches and pains will appear. Maybe you decide that they are too unimportant for a special visit to the doctor. But sometimes you go right on worrying about them. If you make regularly scheduled visits to your doctor, you can bring up these problems and find out for sure whether they are important or not. There's nothing like the satisfaction of being told you have nothing to worry about.

It's reassuring to find out that a complaint is perfectly normal for your age. Talking things over with the doctor helps to improve your general well-being, as well as to prevent real sickness. Some older people are apt to bore everyone around them with details of their digestive troubles, lack of sleep, shortness of breath, and tiredness. The doctor's office is the place for this kind of conversation. He won't be bored. You can pour out your worries to him and he'll give you advice that is best for you.

Of coures, it's important to have a doctor with whom you feel comfortable and able to talk freely. If you haven't a family doctor, your county medical society will give you the names of two or three reputable physicians. Then you can choose the one who suits you.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. Zollie C. Newnam

Last rites for Mrs. Zollie C. Newnam, of 2000 Poplar Street, were held Tuesday afternoon at Revolution Baptist Church where she was a charter member. Rev. S. L. Riddle, pastor, officiated. Textile Publisher Widely Praised

David Clark, chairman of the Clark Publishing Company, textile publications, who died November 15, was widely known in the textile industry.

A copy of the Textile Bulletin for March, 1936 carries messages congratulating Mr. Clark on the magazine's 25th anniversary. Among them are messages from Bernard M. Cone, who was at that time president of Proximity Manufacturing Company, now Cone Mills Corporation, and another was by R. H. Armfield, superintendent of White Oak Plant.

Mr. Cone stated:

"I'm an admirer of David Clark. He is an exponent of the truth; he has the courage of his convictions; he has been a valiant fighter against the enemies of the textile industry, and he deserves the thanks and support of all members of that industry."

Mr. Armfield stated:

"Your fearless and open-minded editorials have long been a source of pleasure and information as well as the helpful articles carried on the Discussion Page, which have meant so much to me."

Little Talks With Big Thoughts

I was startled the other day to see written across the bumper of a huge trailer truck.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

Then I saw the name of the company, and remembered the story of that trucking firm.

When the war was ended, two G. Is took their terminal pay and a G.I. loan and bought a small trucking business. The fleet of trucks grew, but so did the expenses. Then came a general truckers' strike.

The two boys called in their drivers, showed them the books, the debts, their prospective orders, ect. "This is the end of our hopes, of the dream we had on the Pacific Islands!"

The men listened, then one stood up. "I have a few dollars saved; where's the pot?" In turn, each driver turned over what he had. The trucks rolled the next day, every driver a part-owner of that dream.

Today the small local firm has an interstate fleet covering the highways of four states — all because men had faith in each other.

Smallpox is another disease which you can have your child protected against. It should be given before he is one year old.

At the age of two and again at four, your child should be given a booster dose of the triple vaccine. It is required for entrance to school.

If a problem arises such as feeding, clothing, bathing, punishment or discipline, nail biting or thumb sucking, come to the club and ask the nurse. If she can't help you she can refer you to someone who can.
